Since 2001, Linda Reiner has worked at Caring for Colorado Foundation serving as the Director of Planning and Evaluation and most recently as Vice President. In addition to working with the Caring for Colorado Board of Directors in setting and evaluating the foundation’s funding priorities, Reiner also supervises the foundation’s grantmaking team with funding portfolios in the areas of oral health, mental health, healthcare workforce, community health and healthy children and youth. In 2016, the Foundation will reach a milestone of granting $100 million to non-profits and governmental entities throughout the state with the goal of improving access to health for underserved and vulnerable populations.

Prior to working at Caring for Colorado, Reiner spent eight years as the Director of Planning, Information and Education and as a Health Planner at Tri-County Health Department in Englewood, Colorado. She also worked as an Assistant Project Director at the Illinois Primary Health Care Association working with community health centers in Chicago to increase access to health services for the underserved. Reiner holds a Master’s Degree in Public Health from the University of Illinois at Chicago and a Bachelor’s Degree in Biology from The Colorado College.

Reiner is a Board member of the Colorado Health Institute and serves on the Board of Health for Jefferson County.
