Recruiting Handbook

This packet includes basic guidelines for conducting searches and hires for tenure track faculty and visiting faculty as well as material that may be useful to departments and programs during their recruitment process. Recruitment procedures are also described in Section IV. A. in the Faculty Handbook.

I. Securing Approval for a Tenure-Track Search

All departments and programs must seek approval for any tenure track search. Submit proposals to the Dean of the College, who will discuss proposed searches with the chair or director and the FEC, and make a recommendation to the President. The President gives final approval for all searches.

Proposals for the reauthorization of a position vacated by retirement or resignation are due by the end of Week 3 in Block 7. Authorized searches will take place during the following academic year.

Proposals must include:

1) a brief description of the position

2) an explanation of the need to fill the position

3) a statement of how the position fits into the long-term goals of the department or program, how it contributes to general education requirements, and how the position might contribute to diversity in the curriculum and/or the community

4) an initial draft of a job announcement

The application can be found on the Dean’s Office Canvas site.
II. Starting the Search: Search Committee

After securing final approval by the President to conduct a search, the department or program will select a search committee. According to the Faculty Handbook, each committee includes two non-departmental cognate members. The hiring department or program will select the first member, and the Associate Dean of the Faculty will select the second member, often in consultation with the department or program.

Each search committee should also have a minimum of two diversity representatives. At least one of the representatives must be tenured, and both representatives should have completed sessions focused on diversity in the recruiting process: either two half-day sessions, or 1 full-day session. Department members and faculty chosen as outside members may also serve as diversity representatives if they have completed the sessions.

Please contact Mike Siddoway, (msiddoway@coloradocollege.edu) when you are ready to discuss cognate members and diversity representatives. He will have a list of faculty who can serve as diversity representatives if the department does not already have department or cognate members who can serve in this role.

If a hiring department has fewer than four members, the requirement regarding two outside (cognate) members may be altered. The hiring department must submit a proposal outlining the desired committee composition and the reasoning for this composition to the Diversity and Equity Advisory Board and the Dean for discussion and approval. If only one non-departmental representative serves on the hiring committee, the department will suggest someone for this service. If the Associate Dean of the Faculty does not accept the suggestion, the department will put forward another name. The Associate Dean of the Faculty makes the final decision.

The sessions are designed to enhance our knowledge of, and ability to explain, how issues of diversity affect searches for tenure-track faculty. These sessions should be completed as expeditiously as possible and in keeping with the timeline of the search.

If your department is willing to consider a split appointment, the job announcement should include that possibility.

All hiring departments and programs must use PeopleAdmin to collect applications and manage their search. If the chair of the search committee has not yet used PeopleAdmin, please contact Paul Schilli, Senior Talent Acquisition and Employment Manager, (paul.schilli@coloradocollege.edu), (719) 389-6236, Spencer #102. (Note: We do make exceptions for departments/programs that need application platforms that allow larger files to be downloaded.)

For technical instruction and support in PeopleAdmin, contact Matthew Cherry, HR Systems / Employment Specialist (matthew.cherry@coloradocollege.edu), (719) 227-8344, Spencer #111. He can also provide one-on-one training sessions with chairs and academic administrative assistants.
III. Job Advertisements for Faculty Hires

The Dean’s Office places a single ad in major national venues including specific sites to recruit faculty who may contribute to diversity. This replaces the old practice of individual departments paying for their own ads in the same journals (i.e., in a year with seven searches, we previously paid for seven ads in The Chronicle of Higher Education, seven ads in Inside Higher Ed, seven ads in Latinos in Higher Ed, and so on). Now the office pays for one ad in each of these locations commonly used by all departments. The ads list the department and field being sought and refer people to the CC faculty employment website for details of the position. Be sure to send the final approved job description to the Associate Dean of the Faculty for posting on that site.

The journals/websites in which the College currently places the college ad are:

- The Chronicle of Higher Education
- Inside Higher Ed
- Latinos in Higher Ed
- Hispanic Outlook
- Diversejobs.net
- HigherEdJobs.com
- SACNAS
- Outlook in Higher Education
- AcademicCareers.com
- The Academic Network

If a significant venue is missing from this list that is national in nature (not just specific to one discipline) please contact the Dean’s Office. The ads are normally submitted for print by mid-August to assist the many departments that are searching early every year. Let the Associate Dean of the Faculty know if a department needs to place ads even earlier.

While departments will, of course, place their ads in venues appropriate to the discipline, it is important to include venues within and outside of the discipline that are likely to be seen by potential candidates who are not well represented in the discipline.

Remember that ads are expensive; please be concise, precise and judicious about the number of ads you place, and think strategically about where you place them. Before submitting ads to journals and websites, departments or programs should inform the Associate Dean of the Faculty of the cost and get approval. This is necessary in order to stay within the recruiting budget.

The Colorado College EEO statement now reads as follows: Colorado College is an equal opportunity employer committed to increasing the diversity of its community. We do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, age, disability, national origin, religion, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression in our educational programs and activities or our employment practices.

See samples of ads in Appendix I
IV. Diversity Goals

To strengthen our collective efforts to diversify the faculty and the curriculum we must make every effort to recruit highly qualified candidates who contribute to diversity and ensure that they are represented in the final round. In addition to the journals and sites where the Dean’s Office posts college ads, the Diversity and Equity Advisory Board has identified journals and sites that are especially valuable for diversity recruitment. While advertising is crucial, note that advertising is usually not enough to accomplish our goals; we encourage departments to use multiple approaches to enhance the diversity of the candidate pool. In addition to contacting universities and professional associations, many of which have web pages, search committees can access sources in Appendix II of this document. Use multiple approaches to enhance the diversity of the candidate pool. Please be aware that the President may cancel a search if a search committee has failed to make strong efforts to enhance the pool.

See Sites for Improving Diversity in Recruitment in Appendix II
V. Candidate Interviews and Communication with the Dean's Office

If search committees have questions or concerns that are not addressed in the Dean's Office guidelines, the Dean or Associate Dean of the Faculty can meet for a few minutes with the full search committee (including outside representatives) sometime between the placement of the job announcement and when the committee begins reading applications.

a) Before interviews begin the Dean's Office should have received the following from the hiring department or program:

- Names of diversity representatives and cognate members of the search committee (ideally by the beginning of summer).
- A copy of the final job announcement (usually early in the summer), and information on where it has been posted or published.
- In disciplines and fields that are likely to require start-up funds for labs, it would be helpful to provide an estimate of start-up funds for a potential new hire. The estimate could be based on a median and range of funds provided to a sample of recent hires in the department. The current policy is to provide new tenure track faculty with $6000 in start-up funds to purchase a computer system through the College’s ITS: Department. The balance constitutes a discretionary fund to support professional development, but is generally too low to support lab start-up.

b) Arranging and Conducting Interviews

- Some departments choose to interview a short list of candidates at professional meetings or by phone. If this approach is used, the recruiting budget will support expenses for one or two faculty members to attend a conference for recruiting purposes. Of course departments can help the college reduce expenses if faculty who plan to attend meetings for professional development can also participate in recruitment.
- When the department or program has selected the final three candidates to interview, but before contacting candidates, please send the Dean (swong@coloradocollege.edu) and Olga Sonnenburg (olga.sonnenburg@coloradocollege.edu) copies of the application letters, CVs and recommendation letters of the proposed three candidates as well as the materials for the other two to four candidates on the short list. Indicate the total number of applicants and the numbers and percentages of identifiable women, men, and minority candidates.
- You may request the PeopleAdmin demographics anytime during the search from Matthew Cherry (matthew.cherry@coloradocollege.edu).
- The Dean must approve candidates before they are invited for interviews. After receiving the dean’s approval, the department may arrange the on-campus interviews. If a department or program interviews candidates that are not permanent residents of the U.S., it is important to follow the guidelines for international hires.
- For on-campus interviews, invite three candidates who will usually visit for two or three nights, and three days. Please consider whether certain dates will result in lower airfares. Only in exceptional circumstances do departments receive authorization to interview a fourth candidate.

- Departments and programs arrange agendas for campus visits. Candidates participate in a public presentation and/or discussion open to the College community. When planning itineraries, please schedule a 30-minute interview for each candidate with the President and a 45-minute interview with the Dean of the College and Faculty. Beginning in 2016-17, please also schedule a 45-minute interview with the Assistant Vice President and Director of the Butler Center so that the candidate has an opportunity to ask questions and learn about initiatives and programs that promote diversity, equity, and inclusion on campus and in local communities. Additionally, please schedule a meeting for the candidate with representatives of the appropriate Divisional Executive Committee.

- Provide each of these offices with a copy of each candidate's CV, application letter and itinerary. Please include reference letters for the Dean as well. (The Dean’s Office should already have these materials; make sure to provide the President and the Assistant Vice President and Director of the Butler Center with the application letter and CV.) Candidates may find it useful to visit classes, the library, the Director of Faculty Research Support, the fitness center and other centers, on campus; as well as downtown, and other areas and neighborhoods of Colorado Springs. When organizing itineraries, ask candidates if there are places they would like to visit or particular individuals whom they would like to meet, if possible.

c) Expenses

Though it is important to treat visiting candidates well, please act as good stewards of the College’s funds. In particular, eliminate or limit expenses for alcoholic beverages. Spouses/partners who do not perform a role in the interview process do not attend meals. For expenses and spending guidelines, contact Olga Sonnenburg at x6682 or olga.sonnenburg@coloradocollege.edu. The search committee chair (or designate) and the candidates must keep all receipts for the charges made to the College for the search. The following guidelines apply:

c.1) For Tenure-Track Searches

- Travel to conferences for recruiting
  - Travel support is provided for up to two faculty if faculty are not attending the meeting as their Dean supported conference. Lowest cost airfare and registration are covered.
  - $300/day per diem (to cover lodging, ground transportation, baggage, food). If a meeting room is required for interviews, please consult with the Dean’s Office.

- Candidate’s on-campus visit
  - Candidate’s on-campus visit
    - Use preferred hotels with CC rates found on the CC Finance and Administration Secure Information page: https://www.coloradocollege.edu/offices/finance/administrative-services/secure-information.html

      You will need to log in to the secure information page that is found on this site.
Depending on size of department or program, the Dean’s Office will pay up to $2500 total for meals/food/entertainment during on-campus interviews for the normal number of 3 candidates. For departments with 8 or more tenured/tenure-track faculty Dean’s Office provides up to $2800. Departments need to pay for expenses above these amounts. It is helpful to organize meals so that search committee members meet with candidates in smaller groups (3-6 or so) and each member is able to have one meal with a candidate.

For transporting a candidate in Colorado Springs, you will need to be on the Colorado College Certified Driver’s List. Please visit this site for more information on how to become a certified driver or for general information on transportation policies: https://www.coloradocollege.edu/offices/facilities/transportation.html. If a faculty member uses his or her own vehicle to transport the candidate during the visit, the faculty person’s personal insurance provides coverage.

c.2) For Year-Long Visitor or Riley Scholar-in-Residence Searches

For year-long visitor hires. (One candidate is brought in for a visit, and an “up” or “down” vote is made before the Associate Dean of the Faculty gives permission for another candidate to be invited to campus.)

- Travel to conferences for recruiting does not apply.

- Candidate’s on-campus visit (usually 1 – 1 ½ days).
  - Use preferred hotels with CC rates found on the CC Finance and Administration Secure Information page: https://www.coloradocollege.edu/offices/finance/administrative-services/secure-information.html. You will need to log in to the secure information page that is found on this site.
  - Dean’s Office will pay up to $500 total for meals/food/entertainment during on-campus interviews with the candidate. For departments with 8 or more tenured/tenure-track faculty, Dean’s Office provides up to $600.

Typically, the year-long visitor candidate’s itinerary includes a meeting with the Associate Dean of the Faculty, a class visit, a presentation, and a campus tour. The Riley Scholar-in-Residence candidate meets with the Associate Dean of Academic Programs and Strategic Initiatives.

For transporting a candidate in Colorado Springs, you will need to be on the Colorado College Certified Driver’s List. Please visit this site for more information on how to become a certified driver or for general information on transportation policies: https://www.coloradocollege.edu/offices/facilities/transportation.html. If a faculty member uses his or her own vehicle to transport the candidate during the visit, the faculty person’s personal insurance provides coverage.

All recruitment expenses should be paid by the department’s operating budget, using account 773531 “recruiting/interviews” (instead of using accounts for meals, lodging, airfare, etc.) and recorded on the Recruitment Form available on the Dean’s Office website. At the conclusion of the search, please submit the Recruitment Form to the Dean’s Office. The Dean’s Office will transfer funds into the department operating fund (account 773531) to cover the approved expenses. If departments have questions about this procedure, please contact the Dean’s Office to discuss alternative options.

See Comments about the Interview Process from New Faculty in Appendix III
VI. Choosing Final Candidates

After candidates have been interviewed, the search committee chair solicits comments from those who met with the candidates, arranges and facilitates discussions among the search committee, and then decides on a candidate to recommend to the Dean of the Faculty and College. The chair or program director will provide information on the committee’s choice, the diversity of the applicant pool and interviewees, and the level of support within the department for the recommended candidate. Once the search committee has voted and decided on a candidate to recommend, the committee chair DOES NOT make an offer.

The Dean reports the department’s and his or her own recommendation to the President. Official offers cannot be made without the President’s approval. Once the President’s approval is secured, the Dean will notify the search committee chair, who may then contact the candidate to inform the candidate that the College is interested in making a job offer.

If the candidate is interested in entertaining an offer, the Dean will contact the candidate and offer an appointment on behalf of the College. The Dean will discuss salary, start-up funds, tenure clock and moving expenses with candidates. If the terms of the appointment are accepted, the Dean sends the candidate a letter of appointment.

Candidates often want to negotiate, especially if they have, or anticipate having other offers. Although it is hard to predict what will matter most to candidates, possible spousal employment is increasingly an issue. Of course, it is not permissible to inquire about these and other kinds of personal issues; however, it is permissible to respond if a candidate asks.

Keep all documents pertaining to the recruitment process, including records of the candidates’ application materials, for three years. Please contact Matthew Cherry (matthew.cherry@coloradocollege.edu) for assistance in disposition of applicants in PeopleAdmin.

In the case of a one-year hire, the search Chair sends a formal request (using the one-year visitor request form found on the Dean’s Office website) to the Associate Dean of the Faculty who in consultation with the Dean determines a salary offer that is communicated to the Chair. The Chair then makes the offer to the candidate. For a Riley Scholar-in-Residence hire, the Chair asks the Associate Dean of Academic Programs and Strategic Initiatives for permission to hire. The Associate Dean consults with the Dean and after affirming the request determines a salary offer that is communicated to the Chair. The Chair then makes the offer to the candidate.
VII. Suggestions Regarding Diversity Representatives and International Hires

The Diversity and Equity Advisory Board (DEAB) and its representatives work within college hiring committees to 1) ensure that qualified faculty of color receive fair consideration and 2) evaluate the candidates as contributors to an inclusive and respectful campus environment for all its members. The DEAB believes that the second objective is the one often overlooked by the campus community; therefore, the DEAB hopes to make all CC employees more attentive to this aspect of diversity at Colorado College.

A primary responsibility of the DEAB is to “encourage the development of a campus climate hospitable to people of color and women faculty, administrators, staff, and students.” As a result, it monitors the college’s hiring practices and encourages the practice of the College’s Equality Statement. Dedicated representatives for diversity and equity are included in all hiring committees for full and part time staff and faculty positions at Colorado College.

The Diversity representative should be given the opportunity to question each candidate about their perceptions of the College as a culturally and ethnically diverse community and their role or contribution within that context. The representative will commonly ask each candidate how they would work to develop an atmosphere of mutual respect and fairness for all individuals under their supervision and on the campus as a whole and about any experience they might have regarding potential interests and issues especially relevant to people of color. In fairness to the job applicants, the DEAB requests that search committee chairs inform the candidates about the presence of these representatives on the committees.

Evaluating the search: Report back to the Dean with a short, written summary of the process/outcome so the Dean can provide this information to the DEAB.

If employing international faculty in tenure track positions, please refer to the guidelines in Recruitment Handbook.

a) Examples of questions to ask in on-campus interviews

“Colorado College seeks to encourage cultural and ethnic diversity on our campus. What contribution can you make to that overall effort, and what efforts have you made during prior employment? What actions do you take in the classroom/workplace to develop an atmosphere of mutual respect and fairness for students and staff of color?”

b) For Diversity Representatives

Contact the department or search committee chair to confirm the scheduling of the search:

- Job description posting
- Application deadline
- Compilation of the “long” list
• Phone/conference interviews
• Compilation of the “short” list
• Campus interviews
• Decision meeting
• Reporting back to the Diversity and Equity Advisory Board

c) Points of Consideration

• Whenever possible, assure that candidates of color are represented at all stages of the decision.
• The college needs to hire people who will be sensitive to how race issues, culture, gender, sexual identity, inequality, and privilege operate, especially in higher education (of course, some candidates will have higher proficiencies in particular areas).
• Ensure that candidates of color are not being discarded as ideologues or as representing a “special interest.”
• Identify candidates who not only can support and promote the college’s diversity goals, but who can survive and thrive at the college.
• Please work with the Diversity and Equity Advisory Board and cognate representatives on the search committee to advance the college’s stated goal to increase the diversity of the college community and curriculum.

For the Diversity representative a “winning” decision is not one in which a person of color is hired. A winning decision is one in which a candidate is chosen based on good criteria. Sometimes, the person of color is not the best choice. If you are convinced the decision was fair, you have served your role.

c) What can I ask? How do I ask it?

e) Some of our Favorite Questions

- In what ways have you mentored, supported, or encouraged students of color on your campus/in your department?
- In your opinion, what are the three major problems (challenges) for students of color in higher education (or in your field)?
- Sometimes we find that students of color do not participate in class as often as white students. How have you addressed this issue?
- Have you ever incorporated discussions of race, class, sexual identity or gender-related issues in your teaching? Can you give some examples?
- Have any of your students ever written about gender/sexual identity or other diversity issues in their term papers? Can you give some examples?
- In your current position, have you ever seen a student of color, female student or colleague treated unfairly? How would/did you handle it?
- How did/would you deal with a colleague (staff/faculty member) who says disparaging things about people of color and/or women?

f) Evaluating the Search

The search committee chair, in consultation with the diversity representatives, submits a written summary of the process/outcome to the Diversity and Equity Advisory Board.

If the department hires a woman and/or candidate of color, consider the factors that may have enabled it to do so and keep a record of good practices and successful searches for future reference. What diversity/inclusion related questions were asked during the interview? What responses to questions were noteworthy?

If the applicant pool was not as large, as qualified, or as diverse as was anticipated, consider:

- Could the job description have been constructed in a way that would have brought in a broader pool of candidates?
- Could the department have recruited more actively?
• Were there criteria for this position that were consistently not met by women or candidates of color?

If women and/or candidates of color were offered positions that they chose not to accept,

• What reasons did they offer? Consider as many factors as you can identify. Are there things that the department and college could do to make it more attractive to such candidates in the future?

Be sure that any analysis and insight is shared with departmental decision-makers and is part of the process of initiating future searches.
VIII. Guidelines for International Tenure-Track Faculty Hire and Record Keeping

a) Background

An international faculty member who is not a Permanent Resident of the U.S. ("green card" holder) will need a visa to work in the United States. There are many visa types with which a foreign national can come to Colorado College to work, the most common types being the H-1B or J-1 visa.

If the hire is for a tenure-track faculty position, the appropriate visa for the College to Sponsor is typically the H-1B (Temporary Worker), followed promptly by an application for Permanent Residency ("green card" holder).

If the hire is for a temporary visiting faculty position, the J-1 (Exchange Visitor) visa is typically issued; (the College will not sponsor the H-1B visa. Depending on the citizenship and the nature of the hire, occasionally other visa types might be appropriate (e.g., O-1 Alien of Extraordinary Ability, TN Canadian and Mexican citizens, E-2 Australian citizen, H-1B1 Singaporean or Chilean citizens, J-1 Academic Training, F-1 Optional Practical Training). The Office of International Programs will help identify the appropriate visa.

b) Before Campus Interviews

When hiring departments have identified the candidate(s) they want to invite for an on-campus interview, they should review the answers to the two employment authorization questions the candidates provided on the application in PeopleAdmin and contact the Director of International Programs when appropriate, based on the chart below. If the hiring process did not use PeopleAdmin (e.g., 1-year or block visitor hire), then the chair should ask the two work eligibility questions shown on the chart. Working with the Director of International Programs at this stage in the hiring will ensure that documentation of the hiring process is appropriately detailed, and allow ample time for the collection of relevant information to make a preliminary determination of employment eligibility while the department continues to proceed with interviews and decision making.

c) Before Making the Job Offer

The Office of the Dean, in consultation with the Office of International Programs and legal counsel, will advise hiring departments on which is the appropriate and approved visa status for hiring a particular individual. A job offer should not be made to any individual until the Dean's Office has determined if the individual is legally eligible to work in the U.S., and type of visa sponsorship (if any) required. Also, no department or individual should promise candidates that the College will sponsor an application for permanent residency on their behalf without confirming with the Dean's Office.
d) How to interpret the work eligibility implications of the legal questions:

If the hiring department used PeopleAdmin, all candidates will have been asked the two questions relevant to work eligibility. If the hire (e.g., one-year visitor) did not use PeopleAdmin, please ask all candidates the two legal questions when you schedule them for campus interviews.

1. If hired, can you show you are eligible to work in the U.S.? [can specify the time period relevant to the position, such as ... "in the upcoming academic year starting in August and ending in May?" or "from August to October (blocks 1-2)?"]

2. Will you now or in the future require the College to sponsor a work authorization visa?

- What is the basis of your current work authorization?
- When does that work authorization expire?
- Have you ever been on a J-1 visa?

e) Tenure-Track Hires

When an international faculty member is hired into a tenure-track position, the College will initiate an H-1B visa application (an employment-based visa category), and within 18 months of the formal job offer (date of issuing the appointment letter), the College needs to file a petition for employment-based permanent residency for the faculty member. If the college fails to submit the petition of permanent residency on time, the College may be obliged to conduct a new national search before we can sponsor the individual for permanent residency.

There are some questions that need to be addressed before the college decides if it can sponsor an individual for H-1B status:

- Has this individual been in J-1 status before?
  - If yes, is this person subject to Section 212(e) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, and if so has this person fulfilled the 212(e) requirement or received a waiver for 212(e)?
  - If the person has not received a waiver or a “no objection letter”, or fulfilled the requirement, they are not eligible for the H-1B category. In rare situations, there might be other visa categories that could be used instead.
- Can the immigration process be completed in time for the required start date?
- For a tenure-track candidate, does this individual have a long-term intention to stay in the U.S.? The H-1B visa only allows the person to work in the U.S. continuously for up to 6 years total and therefore the college must initiate the permanent residency petition process for tenure-track positions.

Only after the Dean's Office, in collaboration with the Office of International Programs, confirms the individual is legally eligible to work, identifies the appropriate visa category, and confirms that any immigration process can be completed in time, will an official offer letter be drafted and extended.

e.1) Visa processing (H1-B) details for tenure track hires

The College applies for, sponsors, and finances the H-1B visa. This process should start immediately upon the acceptance of the job offer, but no later than 5 months before the faculty member is expected to begin work on campus. The College determines which immigration lawyer to use for this purpose. The faculty member agrees to cooperate with the Office of International Programs throughout the application process.
If the faculty member is accompanied by dependents, they are eligible for the H-4 visa. The faculty is responsible for the cost of securing visas for the faculty's dependents. Persons on H-4 visas are not eligible to work in the U.S. Department heads should therefore should not make any spousal hire promises until they have confirmed if the spouse is eligible to work in the U.S. The Office of International Programs can assist the department in making the determination.

The H-1B visa is employer specific. If a new hire holds an H-1B status with another employer, the College will still need to petition for H-1B status for this individual. If H-1B based employment with the other employer ends before the start date of the appointment at the College, the period between employers is considered a "gap in employment." Gaps in employment are not allowed, and this may mean the individual must leave the U.S. until the new appointment starts at the College. The Office of International Programs/CC's legal counsel will offer visa compliance advice to the new hire.

Not every individual applying for a U.S. visa is approved and allowed to enter the U.S. Common grounds of inadmissibility include having been convicted of a crime prior to entering the U.S., having unlawfully distributed or sold drugs, having unlawfully stayed in the U.S., or not having fulfilled the foreign residence requirement [212(e)] or obtained a waiver as a J-1 Exchange visitor.

If the employment is terminated for reasons other than voluntary resignation, the employer is liable for the reasonable cost of return transportation of the individual to his/her last place of residence prior to entry into the U.S.

e.2) Permanent residency for tenure track hires

Tenure-track international faculty need permanent residency status to continue their employment at the College and the College will sponsor the petition for the individual to acquire permanent resident status. The faculty member must contact the Office of International Programs to initiate the application process. The College determines which immigration lawyer to use for this purpose. Within 18 months of the job offer the College petitions for Labor Certification with the Department of Labor. Once the Labor Certification has been approved, the College files a petition through USCIS on behalf of the faculty member for permanent residency. The faculty member agrees to cooperate with the Office of International Programs throughout the application process. The faculty member is responsible for the costs associated with the filing for permanent residency for any dependents.

Once the permanent residency is approved, the faculty member is not required to apply for U.S. citizenship. Permanent residency means that an individual can live and work in the U.S. as long as the permanent residency status is maintained. The College will not provide assistance to the faculty or dependents with obtaining citizenship.
f) Record-Keeping for Tenure-Track Hires

Please share this information with academic administrative assistants supporting the search.

All tenure-track searches could result in the hiring of an international faculty. Therefore, it is imperative that all steps during the hire are well documented so that the college can sponsor the petition for H-1B visa and permanent residency when needed.

The following records will need to be maintained for all tenure-track faculty searches:

- Job description (includes minimum educational requirement)
- Hard and digital copies of position advertisements, including start and end dates of the posting, the title of the journal(s), newspaper(s), and websites where the posting was advertised
- Invoices for job posting
- A search committee report
  - a list of all applicants, including the reason(s) why each candidate was rejected (e.g., no Ph.D.)
  - a list of applicants selected for preliminary interviews (e.g., phone or conference interview), including the reason(s) why each candidate did not advance to on-campus interview
  - a list of applicants selected for on-campus interviews
  - an explanation about why the selected candidate was chosen over other finalists, listing the qualifications and achievements of the selected candidate and how these match the required and preferred criteria in the job description
- copies of the selected candidate’s CV, diploma, transcript, and other related professional credentials

The Dean's Office will keep a record of the faculty's appointment offer letter that is signed by both the Dean and the faculty.
IX. Guidelines for International Visiting Faculty Hire

An international visiting faculty member who is not a permanent resident ("green card" holder) will need a visa to work in the United States, typically the J-1 (Exchange Visitor) visa.

The College will not sponsor a visiting faculty or postdoctoral researcher coming to the end of their F-1 Practical Training status. H-1B status is reserved for hiring in approved long-term, non-visiting positions.

Depending on the citizenship and the nature of the hire, occasionally other visa types might be appropriate (e.g., O-1 Alien of Extraordinary Ability, TN Canadian and Mexican citizens, E-2 Australian citizen, H-1B1 Singaporean or Chilean citizens, J-1 Academic Training, F-1 Optional Practical Training). The Office of International Programs will help identify the appropriate visa.

a) Before Campus Interview

When hiring departments have identified the candidates they want to invite for an on-campus interview, they should review the answers to the two employment authorization questions the candidates provided on PeopleAdmin and contact the Director of International Programs when appropriate, based on the answer chart above. If the hiring process did not use PeopleAdmin, then the chair should ask the two work eligibility questions described in the previous section for tenure-track hires (1. If hired, will you be legally eligible to work in the U.S.? and 2. Will you now or in the future require the College to sponsor a work authorization visa?).

b) Before Making the Job Offer

The Office of the Dean, in consultation with the Office of International Programs and legal counsel, will advise hiring departments on which is the appropriate and approved visa status for hiring a particular individual. A job offer should not be made to any individual until the Dean’s Office has determined if the individual is legally eligible to work in the U.S., and type of visa sponsorship (if any) required. Also, no department or individual should promise candidates that the College will sponsor an application for permanent residency on their behalf without confirming with the Dean’s Office.

b.1) The F-1 Visa OPT

International faculty hired into a visiting faculty position could utilize the F-1 International Student Optional Practical Training (OPT) status to work for 12 months after the completion of studies. Ph.D. candidates who have completed all coursework but have not completed the dissertation may be eligible for OPT also. The individual is responsible for working with the university that issued the F-1 visa to initiate and secure OPT work approval.

b.2) The J-1 Visa

The College’s J-1 Exchange Visitor Program sponsors visiting professors and scholars to engage in teaching, research, and other academic activities. Individuals hired to permanent employment positions (e.g., tenure-track faculty) are not eligible for participation in the J-1 Exchange Visitor Program. An Individual in J-1 visa status (in the categories professor or research scholar) cannot be a candidate for a tenure-track position.

There are multiple categories under the J-1 Visa Program and the most commonly used at the College for visiting faculty are:

- Professor: This status is suitable for international professor who enters the U.S. for the primary purpose of teaching. The visa is available for a duration of three weeks to five years.

- Short Term Scholar: This status is suitable for block-visitor faculty who will be employed at the College for six months or less.

- Research Scholar: This status is suitable for an international scholar who enters the U.S. for the primary purpose of conducting research (e.g., a post-doctoral researcher position). A J-1 research scholar may also teach.

Only after the Dean's Office, in collaboration with the Office of International Programs, confirms the individual is legally eligible to work as a visiting faculty, identifies the appropriate visa category, and confirms that any immigration process can be completed in time, will an official offer letter be drafted and extended.

Visa processing details for J-1 visiting faculty

For visiting faculty to be hired in the J-1 status, the College issues a DS-2019 Certificate of Eligibility for Exchange Visitors to the hired individual, who is responsible for applying for a visa to enter the U.S. in J-1 status. Canadian citizens need a DS-2019 but do not need a visa.

The individual may not enter the U.S. more than 30 days prior to the begin date of the appointment (begin date on the DS-2019), and must leave the U.S. 30 days after the end of the appointment. Outside of working for the College, if J-1 professors and scholars plan to participate in incidental employment (e.g., providing occasional lectures or consulting), they must secure approval from the Office of International Programs prior to the incidental employment.

Insurance requirements. Individuals in J-1 status in the U.S. are required to have health insurance for themselves and all accompanying dependents in J-1 or J-2 status. However, the College's health insurance coverage does not fulfil the requirements that the State Department mandates for J-1 visitors. The Office of International Programs will assist the hired faculty to ensure sufficient coverage.

Dependent employment. Dependents on J-1 or J-2 status are eligible to work.

Two-year home residency requirement. Individuals who have been in J-1 status are often subject to a two-year home residency requirement [212(e)]. This requirement states that the individual may not change to another non-immigrant status in the U.S. or acquire immigrant status (e.g., H-1B, permanent resident) until the individual has resided for two years in his/her home country or country of legal permanent residence, or has been granted a waiver of the two-year requirement.
Appendix I: Samples of Announcements

Job announcement for a tenure-track position in Feminist and Gender Studies:

The Feminist & Gender Studies (FGS) Program at Colorado College is seeking applicants for a full-time tenure-track Assistant Professor position in LGBTQ Studies to begin Month, Year.

FGS currently has two full-time faculty members and twelve core members from across different departments and disciplines of the college. We are open to a variety of disciplinary, interdisciplinary and methodological approaches; however, will be given to candidates who complement our existing strengths. In addition, strong consideration will be given to LGBTQ Studies scholars who have an active research trajectory in one or more of the following areas: critical race/ethnic studies; dis/ability studies; science, medicine and technology studies.

The successful candidate will have advising and teaching duties in FGS. In addition to courses related to their particular area(s) of expertise, they will be expected to teach Introduction to Feminist and Gender Studies, Critical Feminist Methodologies, and Feminist Theory in rotation with other faculty members in the program. As an interdisciplinary program, we are especially interested in candidates who have a demonstrated commitment to building cross-disciplinary ties with programs and departments across the college. We are committed to increasing the diversity of the Colorado College community. Candidates who contribute to that goal are particularly encouraged to apply.

Please note that Colorado College operates on the “Block Plan,” which is a uniquely intensive academic schedule that allows students to plunge into a different subject every three and a half weeks rather than balancing several courses at the same time. Students take one course at a time and professors teach one at a time, with a maximum of 25 students per course. The standard faculty load is six blocks per year, which may include a block for senior capstone project supervision. Hence, the successful candidate will demonstrate a serious commitment to undergraduate liberal arts education.

Applications are due by DATE. Review of applications will continue until a pool of qualified candidates has been identified. Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, as well as research and teaching statements, and a sample of scholarly work. Additionally, the successful candidate must have completed a Ph.D. in the relevant field(s) by the time of appointment. Queries may be directed to (chair’s name), Director of Feminist & Gender Studies at (chair’s email address here).

Colorado College is an equal opportunity employer committed to increasing the diversity of its community. We do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age, religion, gender identity or expression, disability, or sexual orientation in our educational programs and activities or our employment practices.

Job announcement for a tenure-track position in Physics:

The Physics Department at Colorado College invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position starting in Month Year. We prefer a candidate with some teaching experience who can teach across our physics curriculum. Further, we are dedicated to the development of faculty and staff who are committed to inclusive practices in teaching, learning, and working. Candidates who can contribute to that goal are particularly encouraged to apply.

The Colorado College is a selective, undergraduate liberal arts college of 2000 students at the foot of Pikes Peak. Our unusual academic calendar, in which students take and faculty teach one course at a time, allows flexibility for innovative teaching. Our department has graduated an average of about a dozen majors per year recently. We would like to encourage more women and minorities to take an interest in physics and astronomy; if you can help us do that, we will be especially happy to hear from you.

Please send cover letter, CV, copies of undergraduate and graduate unofficial transcripts, brief summary of your experience in and philosophy of teaching, description of your research interests including experimental or observational projects suitable for undergraduate collaborators, and three letters of recommendation. Deadline for applications is DATE.

Colorado College is an equal opportunity employer committed to increasing the diversity of its community. We do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, age, disability, national origin, religion, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression in our educational programs and activities or our employment practices. Appendix III: Comments about the Interview Process from New Faculty

Recently hired tenure-track faculty members have provided the following suggestions about the on-campus interview process. Candidates may welcome:

1) More information about travel opportunities, funding within the department and division, summer awards for research and student-faculty collaboration, sabbatical and leave policies;

2) More information about teaching and what is expected within the department or program, how course schedules are arranged each year, how faculty members within the department manage their time, how faculty organize courses and design assignments, whether or not teaching every day of the week is expected;

3) More information about class size: be open about 'average' class size and range of class sizes;

4) A tour of the TLC and the Library (and other relevant facilities on campus);

5) Good (non-breakfast) contact with students; lunch is best; open-ended is helpful;

6) Mention of the high number of tenure-track faculty joining the college; a large cohort of fellow rookies sounds welcoming;

7) Mention of the importance of student majors to the search process; be clear about the importance of student perspectives upon the candidates;

8) Opportunities to interact with faculty outside the discipline and to make non-discipline-specific connections.
