

FELLOW PROFILE

Fellow's Name:

Caroline Olin

Fellow's Partner Organization:

TESSA

What are your main responsibilities as a PIFP fellow?

Helping to implement sexual assault prevention initiatives, engaging in outreach and education with the community's youth, researching and liaising for outreach initiatives, and contributing to TESSA's social media outlets.

What's the most interesting thing you've learned in your fellowship so far?

I have not yet started my fellowship, but I've learned so far from communications with my organization to be ready for the unexpected and to always be adaptable.

Why did you want to become a PIFP Fellow?

I am passionate about working in the nonprofit field and engaging in social justice work. I understand that I have had access to many opportunities and privileges others haven't, and I'm intent on using the opportunities and privilege afforded me to help those that are in need of and are asking for help.

What activities outside of your work do you enjoy?

I love to cook—particularly food I've never encountered before, I love to read, and, honestly, I really love being a couch potato and binge-watching Netflix.

What is something most people would be surprised to know about you?

I've played the Cello for nearly all my life, and I was in a short-lived girl band at CC—we were called Capitana.
