

Andrew Streight '12

Andrew Streight is an associate at Corona Insights, a Denver-based market research and strategy consulting firm primarily working with Colorado nonprofits, institutions of higher education, and government organizations. At Corona Insights, Andrew serves primarily in a consulting role, focused on guiding clients through a productive strategic planning process by utilizing an analytical skill set, an understanding of the most relevant issues shaping the nonprofit landscape, and an eye for synthesizing information into meaningful insights.

Before joining Corona Insights, Andrew ran a conservation-focused education program for South Metro Water Supply Authority while earning his Master of Arts in global finance, trade, and economic integration from the Korbel School of International Relations at the University of Denver, with a certificate in international law and human rights. An alumnus of the class of 2012, Andrew earned his Bachelor of Arts in philosophy from Colorado College, where he focused on ethical and political philosophy before starting his career as the program coordinator in the President's Office during the college's strategic planning process.

For PIFP, Andrew was a summer fellow for the National Conference of State Legislatures in 2011 before serving as an alumni interviewer and an Advisory Council member.

Outside of work, Andrew enjoys climbing, hiking, camping, reading science fiction and philosophy, and generally exploring the Colorado outdoors with his wife and his dog.