

Cari HanrahanDirector, PIFP/Nonprofit Initiatives*Colorado College

Cari Hanrahan has a BA in Psychology from Carleton College and an MA in Leadership from the School of Education at the University of Colorado Colorado Springs. She first found her niche in the nonprofit world as a college access coach with College Possible in Milwaukee, WI. She moved to Colorado in 2014 to run outreach and access in the CC Office of Admission. October of 2018 found her happily shifting into the Director for PIFP and Nonprofit Initiatives position where she's thrilled to have a foot in each of her favorite doors – nonprofits and higher education. Outside of CC, Cari mentors AmeriCorps members, is currently offering her expertise to a burgeoning mission-based organization in NYC, and manages an all-women's climbing club.

If indoors, Cari can likely be found curled up with a book. Otherwise, her spare time is spent pounding out miles on a bike, playing Frisbee, hiking, and climbing. She's considering taking up running again, but she did tell us that she's been considering this for almost 5 years. Best of luck, Cari.
