

Megan Helseth '11

Megan Helseth is an alumna of Colorado College ('11) and the PIFP program. As an undergrad, she studied Anthropology, with a particular interest in digital culture. She was a yearlong Fellow working in Communications and Operations at the Denver School of Science and Technology (DSST), where she eventually became a full-time employee. She then went on to get her Master's degree from Columbia University in Climate & Society, where she explored the connections between climate change and human culture.

After graduating and returning to Denver, Megan turned to freelance work in data visualization and information design. She uses her understanding of contemporary culture and politics to provide non-profit organizations with graphic design work that is both beautiful and informative. She is also a member of the Board of Directors of Clear Creek Land Conservancy, which seeks to protect land from development in the Clear Creek Watershed Area. She is originally from Evergreen, CO, and enjoys gluten free baking, podcasts, and hikes with her dog, Oscar.
