The Idea:

A computer and phone application that would take data given by friends and family, and generate gift ideas based on that persons preferences. Included within this app would be a calendar function that gave you a notification for a birthday or other gift worthy event, a function to allow more than one person to contribute to a fund to buy more expensive items, the ability to make a 'wish list' for your profile, and a charity add on that would allow for easy donation in that person’s name either as an addition to the gift, or as the gift itself.

Initial obstacles preventing you from starting your business:

I have no programming experience, and would need to find partners who know how to put together a computer application.
