Block 3: Tuesday, October 31 (in conjunction with Diverse Learners Week)

Practices Towards Accessible and Inclusive Classrooms

In Small Teaching, James M. Lang makes the case for deliberate, structured, and incremental changes to our teaching practices. What “small” practices might we as faculty consider in order to make our classrooms more accessible and inclusive? Colleagues from Accessibility Services, The Butler Center, and the ESL Program will offer 1 or 2 classroom practices from their vantages that we might adopt to support students.

Block 4: Tuesday, December 5

Cheating Lessons: Learning from Academic Dishonesty

Join us for a discussion of Honor Code violations, the practices of the Honor Council, and what we as faculty might do to support authentic learning and student work.

Block 5: Tuesday, Jan 30

General Education Revision: Writing Programs and General Education – Dr. Tracy Santa, Writing Program Director, & Dr. Van E. Hillard, Writing Program Director at Davidson College

How might we re-envision our Writing Program as part of the College’s revision of General Education? Dr. Hillard, Director of the Writing Program at Davidson College, and Dr. Santa, Director of our own Writing Program, will lead a discussion of national norms, the Davidson model, and directions for our future at Colorado College. RSVP by noon, Friday, January 26: <http://tiny.cc/Blk5>

Block 6: Tuesday, February 27

Classroom Teaching Observations and Mid-Block Reflections

Crown Faculty Luncheons, Academic Year 2017-2018

Discussion of both formative and summative evaluations and new ideas for increasing student and faculty reflection.

Block 7: Tuesday, April 3

Thinking with Our NFO Read: Claudia Rankine's Citizen - Professors Claire Garcia and Natanya Pulley

Join us in Block 7 as we think with our NFO Read, Claudia Rankine's Citizen: An American Lyric, about free speech, academic freedom, civic engagement, and higher education. Professors Claire Garcia and Natanya Pulley will lead off the discussion.

Block 8: Tuesday, May 1

Collaborative Research in the Digital Liberal Arts
