Whether you choose to relive the CC experience each year, every five years, or maybe only occasionally, the campus awaits your return. Classmates are busy planning reunion gatherings, and the rest of us are filling in the Homecoming schedule with all sorts of stimulating programs, some of which are reliant upon your voice to deepen the conversation.

- Haven’t had enough American politics? Get the CC perspective from faculty and fellow alumni.
- Cheer on a fellow classmate or accomplished alumnus or alumna at Homecoming Convocation (see pages 11-14 for awardee profiles).
- Attend a reception with a favorite faculty member.
- Participate in provocative conversation at Freedom and Authority.
- Attend a “class” like in the good old days, but on innovative topics.
- Hear from current students.
- Hear about your college from President Jill Tiefenthaler.
- Observe progress in action with the Tutt Library renovation or visit the Adam F. Press Fitness Center or renovated Slocum Hall.
- Sit in meditative silence in Shove Chapel.
- Cheer on the Tigers at athletic events.
- Get your best dance moves on. …
- and on … and on. …

The point is: There’s something for everyone! Based on feedback from last year’s participants, we have more class-specific events and more intellectual offerings, including our first-ever TED Talk-style forum for our youngest alumni (all are welcome if the topic moves you).

Join us Oct. 13–16.

In anticipation,

Anita Pariseau
Director of Alumni Relations and Assistant Vice President for Advancement
Welcome to the Weekend

All alumni are invited to join us on campus this fall for a special weekend of reuniting with friends, exploring and rediscovering campus, and celebrating your alma mater, Colorado College.

Join us for Homecoming traditions such as Freedom and Authority and Homecoming Convocation. We’ll also gather in a new location, on the Worner Quad, for Saturday’s all-campus picnic and the Homecoming Dance that evening following class reunion dinners.

We are especially pleased to induct the Class of 1966 into the Fifty Year Club, a special part of our Alumni Association for those alumni who graduated 50 or more years ago. Watch for these special alumni who will be wearing 50th reunion medallions, and be sure to congratulate them.

AFFINITY REUNIONS

REGISTRATION DEADLINE OCT. 9, 2016

Homecoming Dance, Worner Quad Students, alumni, and guests gather to dance the night away. State ID or passport required to purchase beer and wine.

The Louis T. Benezet Award recognizes outstanding achievement in one's chosen field, excellence through unusual success or contribution, innovation or research that has advanced a profession or a cause, and/or extraordinary contributions and achievements that have impacted people's lives and exemplify the values of a liberal arts education. These attributes characterized the important contributions of the late Louis T. Benezet, president of Colorado College from 1955-65.

Scott Desmarais '86 For more than two decades, Scott Desmarais '86 has devoted his passion for economic and social development toward corporate strategy, business management, and public sector consulting in Africa, Europe, Asia, South America, the Middle East, and the U.S. He served in the Peace Corps (along with his wife, Gabi Prochaska '86) in Botswana, worked with the U.S. Agency for International Development in the Congo, and created and led a consulting firm, The Desmarais Group, out of Washington, D.C. He has been
Paul Liu ’81

Dr. Paul Liu ’81 is chairman of the plastic surgery department at Rhode Island Hospital, where he also is an attending surgeon. He is an attending surgeon at Women and Infants Hospital in Providence, Rhode Island, and a consultant with Steminon and Medline Industries. His distinguished career includes previous medical school faculty appointments at Harvard University, the University of Miami, Tufts University, Boston University, and Brown University. His hospital appointments have included the Lahey Clinic, Roger Williams Medical Center, and Brigham and Women’s Hospital. His strong commitment to educating the next generation of researchers and surgeons has provided valuable research opportunities for CC students. He has conducted medical missions, performed as a reviewer for medical journals and grant organizations, and served on several boards, and held membership in numerous societies and hospital committees. He is frequently invited to speak at medical conferences, and he is a violinist with the Warwick Symphony Orchestra. He has had more than 50 papers published in peer-reviewed journals, and his work has garnered research funds and awards. He received his M.A. at Oxford University, received an M.D. from Harvard Medical School, and performed his residency in surgery at Brigham and Women’s Hospital.

The Lloyd E. Womer Award recognizes outstanding loyalty, service, and generosity to the college as evidenced by continuing concern and support for students and the quality of teaching and learning, as well as the general well-being and future excellence of the institution. These attributes characterized the many years of service and effective contributions of Lloyd E. Womer, Class of 1942, who served as a faculty member, dean, and ultimately president of Colorado College (1964-1987).

Thomas A. Fitzgerald ’57

Thomas Fitzgerald’s professional background as an educator included instruction, administration, curriculum research, and implementation. For 42 years, he was a teacher and administrator, primarily at Colorado Academy in Denver. He introduced the innovative parenting program Parents as Teachers to the state of Colorado, which garnered him one of the first “Raising Colorado” awards from then-Governor Roy Romer. Additionally, Fitzgerald was recognized by the Public Service Company as “one of the 50 teachers who make a difference.” As regional coordinator for The National Humanities Faculty and the Educational Development Center, he worked with teachers in 20 states. His publications include stories in Yankee Magazine and American Heritage, a book of stories about his grandfather, and textbooks on topics concerning presidential power and American foreign policy. Additionally, he served in the U.S. Navy and was active on numerous nonprofit and foundation boards. His long history of loyalty and generosity to Colorado College includes serving on the 2016 Homecoming food reunion committee, as the immediate past-president of the 50 Year Club, and as class speaker for his 50-year induction ceremony in 2007. He worked with the Alumni Association Board for five years on engagement and advancement committees, assisted reunion giving, and has helped CC’s advancement staff build relationships that benefit the college. Fitzgerald earned a Ph.D. in education from the University of Colorado.

The Gresham Riley Award recognizes faculty and staff who have made a significant difference to the Colorado College community through outstanding service, commitment, and accomplishment. The continuing concern for and support of students and alumni demonstrated by such individuals ensures the general well-being and future excellence of the college. These accomplishments exemplify the important contributions made by Gresham Riley, the 10th president of Colorado College, 1970-1992.

Richard Bradley

Richard Bradley
Professor Emeritus Richard “Ric” Bradley began his teaching career at Colorado College as an associate professor of physics in 1961. During his long tenure at CC, he became a full professor in 1966, and he served as dean of the faculty and dean of the college from 1975 to 1979 before retiring in 1987. His most enduring legacy was the creation of demonstration and laboratory experiments for introductory physics courses. Among the interdisciplinary courses he co-taught were Conversations of Mankind, Musical Acoustics, History of Scientific Thought, Renaissance Semester, Pattern in Nature, and Perspectives on Western Culture. With Bill Hochman, he co-directed the interdisciplinary major War and Peace in the Nuclear Age. Before coming to CC, he held several academic positions at Cornell University, where he conducted research on metal surface phenomena. His areas of specialization are the physics of solids and electrical discharge phenomena. His memberships include the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Colorado-Wyoming Academy of Sciences, and American Physics Teachers. He is a fellow of the American Physical Society, and he served in the U.S. Navy during World War II. His civic involvements include numerous conservation concerns and activities including testifying at congressional hearings against building dams in national parks and monuments. His musical interest led to the creation, with his brother David, of a 75-minute choral piece with full orchestra titled “Sierra Song,” which was performed by the CC Choir in 1994. He earned a B.A. from Dartmouth College and a Ph.D. in
Cecelia Gonzales

Employed at Colorado College for 21 years, campus horticulturist Cecelia Gonzales is largely responsible for the sustainability and aesthetics of the CC campus landscape. Through her efforts to create a more sustainable and earth-friendly campus, she has replaced much of the bluegrass with native and climate-appropriate plants. Her designs reflect the natural beauty of the campus and are created through careful consideration of cost, maintenance, sustainability, and stewardship. Gonzales became a landscape industry-certified technician with Associated Landscape Contractors of Colorado in 1999. She received the Golden Trowel Award from the City of Colorado Springs for five consecutive years. Her work with students has included building a pollinator garden, serving as student advisor for the Synergy House, teaching trail building at the CC cabin, and assisting with courses and field trips. In 2002, she visited Japan to research gardens, and subsequently she was instrumental in installing a Japanese garden at the Asian House on the CC campus. In 2006, she attended an intensive, invitation-only garden seminar in Kyoto, Japan. Gonzales has served on numerous campus committees and works closely with the Native American Student Union. She received a B.A. from the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs.

Trinity Ludwig Wells ’06

Trinity Ludwig Wells began her investment banking career in 2006 at George K. Baum & Company, where she structured capital project financings for educational and nonprofit institutions. Currently, she splits her professional time between strategic consulting (TJL Consulting LLC) and investment banking (Sage Canyon Advisors), specializing in venture capital, mergers, and acquisitions for emerging technology companies in the government contracting sector. In 2011, during a leave of absence, she and two friends took an 11-month hike up the spine of South America. Throughout their adventure, the trio collected biodiversity data through GPS, photos, and journaling for Pacific Biodiversity Institute. The following year she returned to South America to lead scientists on an exploratory expedition to collect additional data about biodiversity in remote wildlands of Argentina. Paying her passion for the outdoors forward, Wells currently serves as treasurer of the board of Paradox Sports (Boulder, Colorado), a nonprofit that revolutionizes lives through adaptive climbing opportunities. In the past, she served on the boards of two wilderness-focused nonprofits — cityWILD (Denver, Colo.), which provides at-risk youth with wilderness service learning opportunities, and Pacific Biodiversity Institute (Winthrop, Washington), which focuses on land preservation in South America.

The Spirit of Adventure Award recognizes an alumnus/a who exemplifies the unique CC experience through a life of intellectual, social, or physical adventure. These attributes are characterized by the late Robert M. Ormes ’26, a Colorado College English professor from 1952-73 who was the inaugural award recipient. He was an adventurer of the mind, body, and the spirit that exemplifies much of what is special about the college.

— Idris Goodwin
Assistant Professor of Theatre and Dance

Three alumni and one CC professor talk about the importance of the CC network
CC alumni are everywhere, and are uniquely qualified to make a difference in the world. As part of the Colorado College network, alumni like you are prepared, as CC Professor Idris Goodwin explained during the 2016 Baccalaureate ceremony, to “hold the future.”

Your involvement makes the Colorado College network stronger because together, your combined efforts result in:

ROBUST RECRUITMENT: Assistant Director of Admission Leah Fugere ’12 has seen firsthand how alumni make a CC education possible and allow the college to compete for the best students.

In Fugere’s words: “Often, prospective students first hear about Colorado College from our alumni and say, ‘I’ve never heard anyone talk about college like that before.’ One memory stands out vividly. Two years ago, the admission staff told a prospective student that he had been accepted to Colorado College. He was a full-need student who couldn’t pay a dime to attend. His reaction was subdued and we were baffled. Next, we heard from the Financial Aid Office that he would be receiving a full scholarship. He cried with joy at the news. It was a significant moment for me to observe and remember: the scholarship was more important to him than the acceptance offer.”

CAREER AND INTERNSHIP PLACEMENT: A chance encounter recently led Parker McVey ’17 to an internship at Wold Energy Partners that is giving him experience in investment banking and the energy sector.

In McVey’s words: “By coincidence, I met Matt Kelly, a Colorado College annual giving officer, and I shared my interest in interning at an energy firm. A few weeks later, Matt connected me with Court Wold ’06. The interview went very well and shortly after, I secured an internship with Wold Energy Partners for the summer. Court, who is now my boss, has implemented a Block Plan-inspired style into his business and, consequently, into my internship. I have multiple, challenging projects with ambitious due dates that I am constantly working toward completing. Matt was essential in making all this happen, and I am very thankful for his willingness to reach out and help me.”

STRONGER RANKINGS: Jim Parco P’16, Gerald L. Schlessman professor and associate chair of the Department of Business and Economics has developed a personal finance course during the past four years.

In Parco’s words: “During this intensive, nine-day course, we cover budgeting, credit cards, student loans, buying houses and cars, taxes, investing, and retirement planning. One topic that comes up regularly in this class is charitable giving. I remind our students that when they leave the college, we want them ‘to do well, to do good.’ I frequently use giving to CC as an example: A small gift of any amount — even $5 per year — does a lot more good than they might realize. Aside from the contributions to financial aid for less-fortunate students, participation through annual giving is also the only category in which alumni can influence U.S. News & World Report rankings. It is NOT the amount of the gifts the college receives, but rather the percentage of the alumni base that gives something — or, rather, anything each and every year.”
YOUR GIFT TO COLORADO COLLEGE AND EACH OTHER:
When Laura Jenney Roe ’91 and her class’s 25th Reunion Committee planned their class gift, they thought about what Tutt Library had meant to them and then decided they would be part of the effort to renovate it into CC’s library for the future.

In Roe’s words: “Tutt was our go-to place when we needed to crank out work. It was our sole resource for academic research, and it provided a shared space for collaborative endeavors. But who can forget the endless slabs of concrete, the crowded tables, the lack of sunlight, the lifeless décor? And how about that creepy tunnel? Fast forward 25 years and Colorado College is transforming our alma mater’s intellectual hub. This project will more than double Tutt’s current seating capacity while reinventing spaces specifically designed with collaborative ventures in mind. Tutt’s metamorphosis will provide Colorado College with a facility uniquely designed to meet the dynamic needs of the Block Plan. The Class of 1991’s gift to the library renovation project will be a token of our appreciation for our shared Colorado College experiences.

Alumni like you play a vital role in keeping the CC network strong. Whether you’re connecting promising students to the college, sharing your professional connections, or giving every year to the programs, departments, and initiatives that mean the most to you, you’re making this network stronger.
The Colorado College Fifty Year Club, founded in 1976, is a special part of our Alumni Association for alumni who graduated 50 or more years ago.

Congratulations to the Class of 1966 on their induction into the Fifty Year Club during Homecoming Weekend. Please look for these distinguished alumni throughout the weekend wearing their Fifty Year Club medallions.

We invite all current Fifty Year Club members, and members of the Class of ’66, to attend the annual meeting and breakfast on Friday, Oct. 14.
Do you miss the intense intellectual engagement you encountered as a student at CC? What about the classroom discussions with treasured faculty members or the impromptu, late-night debating sessions with friends and classmates? Now you have a chance to participate in Lifelong Learning sessions during Homecoming 2016. Some highlights include a symposium on the liberal arts, a session on Colorado politics, and a reception to catch up with favorite faculty, emeriti faculty, and staff.

Friday, Oct. 14

Academic Department Open Houses
Specific details will be available in the Homecoming pocket schedule you will receive upon arrival on campus.

1-4 p.m., Alumni Symposium: Sampling of the Liberal Arts, Cornerstone Arts Center

1-2 p.m., Colorado Politics, CC faculty, Jeni James Arndt ’86 (Colorado state representative) and Ed Bowditch ’86 (Colorado lobbyist)

2:30-3:30 p.m., Changing Landscapes: Progress and Challenges for the LGBTIQA+ Community
In the last decade, the LGBTIQA+ community has witnessed social, cultural, and political changes that many did not anticipate seeing in their lifetime. Join Professor of History Tip Ragan and other LGBTIQA+ staff, faculty, and alumni in a conversation about where we are, where we’ve come from, and where we still have work to do.

1-4 p.m., “Learning from Western Watersheds: River Governance in a Changing West,”
Join the State of the Rockies Project to learn about their 2016-17 research activities focused on comparing water issues in the Colorado and Columbia River Basins. A growing population throughout the American West, coupled with a changing climate, makes it necessary to reconsider the ways in which we manage water throughout the region and incorporate traditionally underrepresented values in future management. Rockies Project student fellows will present on their research from Summer 2016 and highlight findings to be included in the 2017 State of the Rockies Report.

With Brendan Boepple ’11, assistant project director for State of the Rockies Project

4-6 p.m.,
Homecoming Weekend Kick-off Celebration with Faculty and Staff, Main Space, Cornerstone Arts Center
Alumni are invited to catch up with their favorite faculty, emeriti faculty, and staff. Drop in for light hors d’oeuvres, host bar, and conversation.

Saturday, Oct. 15

11:15 a.m.-1:15 p.m., Freedom and Authority Reading and Discussion, Bemis Great Hall
Join us for a Homecoming Weekend tradition based on Freedom and Authority, the popular interdisciplinary course taught at Colorado College for more than 50 years. Professor Emeritus Bill Hochman and CC faculty members will lead a plenary session to discuss the book and then break out into smaller discussion groups led by members of the faculty. This year’s Freedom and Authority reading will be “Whistling Vivaldi,” by Claude M. Steele, who offers a vivid first-person account of the research that supports his groundbreaking conclusions on stereotypes and identity.

2:30-5:30 p.m.,
Our Vibrant, Innovative Campus, Cornerstone Arts Center
Attend one, two, or all three sessions. Hear 2016 Big Idea student presenters reprise their winning presentations and give updates on progress to date; hear student grant recipients explain their compelling ideas and subsequent ventures; and learn about the new library addition and its sustainable heating plan.

2:30-3:30 p.m., 2016 Big Idea Winners
3:30-4:30 p.m., Student Project Presentations
4:30-5:30 p.m., Library Renovation Walking Tour and Geothermal Heating System Discussion

3-4:30 p.m.,
Young Alumni TED Talks: “Fail Forward,” Yalich Boardroom, Spencer Center
Hear from fellow young alumni about how they’ve navigated their first few years post-CC, and the tricks they’ve picked up along the way.

4-5 p.m.,
Alumni Choir Sing-a-long with Professor Emeritus Donald Jenkins, Room 9, Packard Hall
Sing the old songs. Join Don Jenkins, professor emeritus of music and former choir director, in singing excerpts from some of the great works presented by the Colorado College Choir, 1961-2016.

4 p.m.,
Celebrating and Honoring the Life and Work of Marianne Stoller, Professor Emerita of Anthropology, Shove Memorial Chapel

Saturday, Oct. 15
1-5 p.m.
“Corollary Acts”
I.D.E.A. Space, Cornerstone Arts Center
“Corollary Acts” brings together historical Native American cultural material from the Colorado College collection with the artistic production of 12 contemporary Native American artists. The intent of placing these works together is to demonstrate the influence of older artistic traditions on the artistic production of these contemporary artists. In some cases the historical works are from the same community as the contemporary artist and older artistic traditions in their artwork are very evident. In other instances this relationship is inferred. Exhibiting historical works with contemporary artistic expressions of Native American artists demonstrates the different ways in which these artists pay homage to their indigenous roots and aesthetic traditions. This exhibition will also demonstrate the continual evolution of artistic expression and the ways in which artists seek to innovate and adapt new materials and media to express their own creative vision. — Curated by Michelle McGeough, independent curator

1-6 p.m. and
Saturday, Oct. 15,
1-5 p.m.
“Project UnBlocked: The Modern Middle East: Freedoms and Authorities”
Coburn Gallery, Worner Campus Center
“Project UnBlocked” exhibitions offer a glimpse into the learning arc of a block. Students in the course The Modern Middle East: Freedoms and Authorities, taught by Jane Murphy, associate professor of history; are invited to interact with an exhibition of images from the Middle East. Based on their course readings and discussions on the ways in which Middle Eastern women, men, and children experience issues of freedom and authority in their families and everyday lives, students will re-curate the exhibition by choosing images that parallel, counteract, or complicate the existing images. Working with Professor Murphy and the I.D.E.A. curator, students will redesign the exhibition to incorporate their images and accompanying interpretive text

“Paradise Motel”
Norberg Studio, Edith Kinney Gaylord Cornerstone Arts Center
“Paradise Motel” explores the iconic motel in drama. It is a series of short scenes in a seedy motel — a place to dream, hide, fail, make love, laugh, cry, die, or talk to ghosts — within the confines of the fading wallpaper, the bed one grade up from a prison cell bed, and the worn, stained carpet; this motel has seen it all. “Paradise Motel” was directed and devised by Andrew Manley, associate professor of theatre and dance, and contains a cast of 28 CC students. This is a continuous performance, and audience members are welcome to drop in and out when they like. Tickets are $5 at the door.

Homecoming Weekend! Children age 12 and younger are welcome at on-campus events. If attending the hockey game, children age 2 and older must have a hockey ticket. Event Sitters by Chanty offers safe and professional child and teen care during Homecoming Weekend on Friday, Oct. 14, from 6 p.m.-midnight and Saturday, Oct. 15, from 6 p.m.-midnight in the Warner Campus Center. Dinner is included. To ensure the highest quality of care, space is limited, and pre-registration is required for all children and must be completed by Oct. 9, 2016. For more information about pricing, see the registration form.

ATHLETICS EVENTS: Alumni may attend off-campus athletics events for free with their official Homecoming Weekend nametag. If you would like to attend an off-campus hockey game, you have a few options:

General admission seating can be purchased through Homecoming registration for alumni who would like to sit with reunion classmates in the alumni reunion section. Tickets cost $12 per person for seating in sections 201a and 201b, right behind the student section, and must be purchased by Oct. 9, 2016. Tickets purchased in the alumni reunion section by Oct. 9, 2016, will be available for pick up at Registration Central in the Warner Campus Center. If you would prefer to sit in another section, or if you miss the Oct. 9 deadline to purchase tickets in the alumni reunion section, single game reserved seating tickets can be purchased directly from the Broadmoor World Arena by calling (719) 576-2626 or by visiting www.cctigers.com. Parking at the World Arena is $10. All hockey tickets are non-refundable.

ACCESSIBILITY: All campus buildings are ADA accessible and gull carts will be available throughout Homecoming Weekend to provide participants transportation around campus. To request a disability-related accommodation, please contact the Office of Alumni Relations at phone: (719) 389-7637, fax: (719) 389-6271, or email: homecoming@coloradocollege.edu by Sunday, Oct. 9.

DIETARY RESTRICTIONS: Please note on your registration form if you have dietary restrictions we need to accommodate.

BOOKSTORE DISCOUNTS: The Colorado College Bookstore offers discounts on CC logo merchandise (some exclusions apply). Alumni who are registered and wear an official Homecoming Weekend nametag will receive a discount equal to the number of years since graduation up to 50 years. For example, members of the Class of 1960 would receive a 20 percent discount.

PARKING: During Homecoming Weekend, all campus parking lots are open and available for free guest parking. On-street parking is part of the City of Colorado Springs Parking System. Please pay parking fees and obey all city parking regulations when parking on city streets.

RESTRICTED/PRIVATE AREAS OF CAMPUS:

Alumni are welcome to explore campus and reminisce about their college days. However, please respect that your old dorm room is now the private rooms of a current student. Alumni should remain in the common areas of campus housing.

SHUTTLE SERVICE: A complimentary Colorado College shuttle will be available during Homecoming Weekend to transport alumni and their guests between campus and the Audens and Missing Exchange hotels downtown. The shuttle will pick up at the main entrance of the Audens and Missing Exchange hotels and on the south side of the Warner Campus Center. Shuttle hours will be listed in the Homecoming Weekend pocket guide you will receive upon check-in at Registration Central in Gaylord Hall in the Warner Campus Center.

TAXI SERVICE: Yellow Cab, (719) 777-7777

Mountain Metropolitan Transit
For more information on local bus service visit www.rttransit.com.

WEEKEND ATTIRE: Wear for the weekend is casual during the day. Some dinner locations, primarily off campus, are more formal. Contact the Office of Alumni Relations if you have questions about a specific event. This is October in Colorado, which can mean anything from sun and 70 degrees to rain or snow.

ACCOMMODATIONS: Colorado College has a room block at the Audens and Missing Exchange Hotel in downtown Colorado Springs. Please visit the Homecoming Weekend page on www.coloradocollege.edu/homecoming for more details.
