

Parents Council

Parents Council members challenge Colorado College and our students to think bigger and do more.

The Parents Council includes approximately eight households per class. The Council meets twice during the academic year; once each semester. Members are selected based on their interest in and ability to help Colorado College fulfill its mission of providing “the best liberal arts education in the country.”

A Parents Council household is asked to support the college at a giving level of $25,000 or more annually. One or both parents may serve on the Parents Council for a two-year term; terms are renewable and there are no term limits.
